A Statement Regarding the Conditions in Cape Colony.

The Original Struggle Between the English and Dutch—The Gold, Diamond, and Copper Mines and Their Development—The Movement of Commerce Through Cape Town.

O. P. Austin, Chief of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics, in a recently issued statement, has the following to say in regard to Cape Colony, the seat of the present war between Great Britain and the Boers:

"Cape Colony, which occupies the most southerly part of Africa, came under British control in 1795. Originally discovered by the Portuguese in 1485, it was used by their vessels as a place of call, and for deposit of letters of passage, vessels, but it passed into the possession of the Dutch, and in 1802, the Dutch East India Company established a fort, and occupied the lands adjacent, for the purpose of furnishing supplies to their passing ships, but not with the object of establishing it as a colony. It was captured by the British in 1795, but in 1802 was restored to the Dutch Government, and in 1806 was again occupied by British forces, and at the general peace of 1814 formally ceded to the British Government to the British Crown, and soon became a British colony.

Foundation of the Laws.
"The Dutch population largely remained, retaining tenaciously their customs and language, which up to the present day is an officially recognized language in the colony, the Dutch, as well as the English language being used in the Parliament and the courts. The laws are founded on a modification of the Roman-Dutch law. "The area of Cape Colony is variously stated at from 277,000 to 292,000 square miles, the length from north to south being nearly 400 miles, and the breadth about 450 miles, though this statement of area and length includes British Bechuanaland, which was incorporated with Cape Colony in 1895, and whose area alone was 51,425 square miles.

"The total population of the colony is now given as 2,011,365, of which number about 400,000 are the Dutch, the number being of Dutch descent. The principal events since the British came finally into control are: The first Kaffir war, in 1817; the removal of a portion of the Boers to Natal and the Orange Free State, in 1836; the second Kaffir war, in 1857; introduction of representative government, in 1852; first diamond discovery, in 1867; introduction of responsible government, in 1872; incorporation of Transkeian territories with the colony, in 1885; annexation of Rhodesia, in 1894, and annexation of Bechuanaland, in 1895.

"Mountain ranges, running at a distance of from 150 to 200 miles from the coast, occupy the central and northern parts of the original area of Cape Colony, the territory lying between the mountains and the east being the chief grain and wine producing districts, while along the southeastern coast, where there are summer rains, tobacco and corn are successfully grown. "Between the mountain ranges of the interior are the great sheep, cattle, and horse ranges, and the important industry of ostrich farming. Still farther north is an elevated tableland which supports large numbers of sheep and contains the chief mineral districts. The agricultural industries are more especially under the control of the Dutch population, while those relating to minerals and commerce are controlled by the British residents.

The Mineral Resources.
"The minerals include extremely rich deposits of copper, yielding a percentage of from 32 to 35 per cent, the exports of 1897 amounting to 27,324 tons, valued in round terms at $1,600,000. Coal of considerable value is also produced. "Diamonds, however, are the most valuable product. They are chiefly found at

Kimberley, which lies well at the north of Cape Colony territory and immediately adjacent to the territory of the Orange Free State. The total export of rough diamonds from Cape Colony from 1887 to 1897 is stated at $2,311,087. These mines employ large numbers of people, the importation of articles required by them and the exportation of products of the mines mostly passing through Cape Town, the chief city of the colony.

In addition to this, a large share of the supplies for the colony to 50,000 people engaged in gold mining in the Transvaal enter Africa at Cape Town and are conveyed to Johannesburg by the railroad which connects that place with Cape Town, while the exportation of gold is also made by the same route.

The foreign commerce of Cape Colony is therefore large, including, as it does, the bulk of the supplies intended for the greatest gold and diamond mines of the world, Kimberley, and Johannesburg, and, indeed, a considerable proportion of the supplies of all the Orange Free State and South African Republics, popularly known as the Transvaal.

"The total importation of merchandise in 1897 is given as $1,149,723. In 1896, the value of the imports was $1,149,723, and in 1895, $1,149,723. The imports have grown rapidly, being in 1893 $1,149,723, in 1895, $1,149,723, and in 1897, $1,149,723. The imports of 1897, which were valued at $1,149,723, a total of $1,149,723, from the United Kingdom, $883,233 from British possessions, and $1,149,723 from other countries, a very large proportion of which was from the United States, the goods of which are rapidly gaining in popularity in those parts of the world and increasing in quantity and value imported.

Imports from America.
"The importations from the United States, according to the British Statistical Abstract for Colonial and Other Possessions, have been as follows: In 1886, $29,906; in 1890, $282,022; in 1893, $494,851; in 1895, $872,420; in 1896, $1,179,053; and in 1897, $1,149,723, thus increasing the importation from the United States from $48,192 in value in 1886 to $1,149,723 in 1897.

"The United States Consul at Cape Town reports the importation for 1898 as $80,890,252 in value, and $17,833,257 in transit for other States. Of this, the total importation of $80,890,252 in 1898, manufactures, $5,506,097; hardware and millinery, $6,213,727; hardware and cutlery, $4,314,337; leather and its manufactures, $1,720,429; clothing, $3,805,902; carriage, $1,078,742; drugs and chemicals, $1,510,635; furniture, $1,720,210; corrugated iron, $1,651,392; wood and its manufactures, $2,331,349; woolen manufactures, $1,720,429; and other manufactures, including printing paper, $1,488,044.

"The exports of Cape Colony, including as they do a large proportion of the produce of the gold and diamond mines lying at the north, are very large, and by far exceed the imports. They are given by the United States Consul as $25,518,001 in 1898, as compared with $21,660,210 in 1897. Of the exports, the bulk is gold and diamonds, the figures for 1897 being: Gold, unrefined, $10,591,925, and diamonds, $14,454,376, while the other exports in the colony are: Wool, $1,496,773; hair (Angora), $267,644; ostrich feathers, $260,058; hides, $131,197, and copper, $230,772. "Naturally, with the enormous business consequent upon the most successful gold and diamond mines of the world and the large production of the agricultural industries, the carrying and general business facilities of Cape Colony has rapidly increased. In 1899 there were about 3,000 miles of railway, and nearly 7,000 miles of telegraph open to the colony. The railways, in January, 1899, 2,000 miles were owned and operated by the government, and 1,000 miles by private enterprise. The government owned railway operated by private enterprise, and 183 miles privately owned and worked, in addition to which 343 miles were under construction.

"The telegraph lines in operation in 1898 were given as 6,609 miles. A railway now extends from Cape Town to Kimberley, and thence to Bulawayo, in British South Africa, or Rhodesia, a distance of 1,360 miles, the entire length being in British territory, while a connecting line extends through the Orange Free State to Pretoria, the capital of the South African Republic (Transvaal), whence a line runs eastward to Lourenço Marques, in Portuguese territory, on the Indian Ocean. "The number of vessels entering the ## Clothing Clearance Carnival.

The ten days' brisk selling just past proves that our course in placing clearance prices on our clothing stock has been appreciated.

Bargain offers of so great a magnitude never go begging. The sale will continue during Saturday; that is if all the lines hold out the day. We are doubtful if they will, as many lines will show an incompleteness as to size before closing hour.

If you report early enough you will still have choice of the highest-grade clothing in America at prices ridiculously low.

Then, too, you have the privilege of having them "charged."

These are the unmatchable values:

Boys' and Children's Clothing
Finally Reduced.

The remainder of our recent vast purchases of Boys' and Children's Garments go on sale Saturday morning at prices that are simply appalling for their lowness.

We are determined that not a single lot shall remain in the house and have cut off every semblance of profit, and no little share of original cost.

Those of you who fail to take advantage of these remarkable reductions will certainly regret it.

Every garment meets the requirements of the highest standard of excellence and is guaranteed by us. Money refunded if not satisfactory.

MAKING WORK PLENTIFUL.

LABORERS DELIBERATELY DESTROY LANCE RICE CANAL PROPERTY.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The superintendent of public works has been informed that the grand jury of Oneida county has brought in indictments against fifteen men accused of destroying State property along the canals to the value of $120,000. They are to have a speedy trial, the punishment for the offense being seven years imprisonment and a fine to the amount of the damage caused.

For three years past there has been a systematic destruction of canal banks in the vicinity of Forestport. The purpose of the men in destroying the canal feeder and banks was apparently to make a way for themselves and others in repairing the damage. The $120,000 break, after deducting the cost of material, left nearly $40,000 for wages. The superintendent said: "There is no doubt in my mind that the Forestport gang is the worst band of criminals in the State. They will stop at nothing from petty stealing to the destruction of property. The value of the destruction of its works along the canal. An example should be made of the rascals."

THE JURY DISAGREES.

No Decision in the Case of Mrs. Holmes, an Alleged Poisoner.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 19.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Carrie Holmes, tried at Brownwood for the murder of her husband, Walter Holmes, by poisoning him, after having considered the case three days, has been discharged, as it was evident that it could not agree upon a verdict.

MISS EMMA WOOLLEY HONORED.

Elected to the Presidency of the Mount Holyoke College.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 19.—Miss Emma Woolley professor at Wellesley College, has been elected President of Mount Holyoke College. In place of Mrs. Elizabeth Storrs Mead, resigned, and will assume the duties of the office next July. Miss Woolley is professor of Biblical history and literature and has been connected with the college five years. She is thirty-five years old and was graduated from Wheaton Seminary in 1889. In 1891 she entered Brown University and graduated with degree B. A. in 1894, the first woman to honor the Seminary. She has been Pembroke College, the Woman's College of Brown, and has spent considerable time in travel abroad.

Looking for a Window Smasher.

The police of South Washington are looking for an unknown window smasher. It is said that the window smasher is only part of the unknown's business, and is preliminary to robbery. This conclusion is reached from the fact that in nearly every instance where the glass in the window of South Washington business houses and residences was broken a night or two afterward the premises were entered and robbed.

The Coal Strike Postponed.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 19.—The expected strike which would have sent out 20,000 anthracite coal miners in this region was not declared, the conference of representatives of the United Mine Workers in the Wyoming region. The conference adjourned subject to the call of the chair. It decided to give the operators another hearing and to use every endeavor to prevent a strike.

ENGLISH ATHLETES COMING.

They Will Meet the Teams of the American Colleges.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 19.—Captain Rice, of the Harvard track team, in an interview, said: "I am glad to be able to announce that the games with the English colleges are an assured fact. The hesitation in the matter has proceeded neither from the English nor American, both being equally desirous of having the return series held. The main trouble has arisen from the Boer war, and we have just learned that this will be no obstacle, and that Oxford and Cambridge will be with us, probably some time in May."

RESCUED BY COMRADES.

A Living Chain Formed to Save a Drowning Lad.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Charles Priestly and Alexander Unold, two Union Hill, N. J. boys, yesterday afternoon saved the life of a comrade, fourteen-year-old Herman Wenning, by the exercises of courage and ingenuity that few men would care to be called upon to display at short notice.

THE STRIKERS DETERMINED.

No End of the Trouble with the Trust is in Sight.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 19.—The striking red mill men in the plants of the wire will open headquarters this week, and are preparing for a long struggle. President Edwin K. Jones, of Pittsburgh, and Secretary P. J. Mundie, of Youngstown, of the National Association of Rod Mill Workers, are here. Secretary Mundie, in an extended statement outlining the issues between the men and their employers, says: "There can be no settlement of the strike until all the men are taken back."

A Fortune for a Nurse.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Many people thought that William C. Meyers, a veteran expressman, who lived alone, was very poor. He left an estate of about $15,000, all of which save a paltry sum will go to his devoted daughter-in-law, who came from Virginia to nurse him some time in gold. Mrs. Meyers had a lot of money in gold in the house, which disappeared, and he thought he had been robbed. After his death the money ($2500) was found secreted where he had placed it, and undoubtedly forgotten it. Together with this money a $2500 house amounting to nearly $10,000.

BICYCLES IN GERMANY.

Inferior Wheels Have Injured the American Trade.

Acting Consul J. F. Monaghan, of Chemnitz, reports to the State Department that the exports of bicycles from Germany during the first nine months of the years 1897, 1898, and 1899 amounted to $2,097,722, $2,511,852, and $2,579,441, respectively. The principal markets to which the bicycles were exported were Austria, Switzerland, Denmark, Russia, Holland, England, Belgium, Norway, Italy, Danish colonies, and South America. Mr. Monaghan says: "The German exporters are satisfied with the foreign bicycle trade when they see that the exports from the United States decreased from $5,473,000 for the first eight months of 1898 to $2,951,000 in the first eight months of 1899. This market, the Germans say, we are overstocked with. In 1897 and the first months of 1898, a great many cheap wheels were put upon the foreign markets, regardless of future business. These were American wheels sold in Germany for $20.22 that were dangerous to ride. They looked well, but that was all."

Last year Germany was a strong competitor of England in the latter's home and colonial market. In the first nine months Germany sent to England 11,762 bicycles to Australia, 2,800, and to British East Indies, 1,452. To meet this competition, the manufacturers of England combined to reduce the price of their wheels. "We fear that next spring will see large shipments of American wheels to this market."

"This market is still open to a large trade in American wheels if certain requirements are complied with. The best possible wheels for the 1 1/2-2 possible price—not to exceed 250 marked 1 n.p. ... price—not to exceed $39.50 at retail; all broken parts to be replaced in the city, which the machine may be purchased; any tire will answer, but the valves must be like those in vogue here; the law requires a good brake on each wheel, and no wheel should be sent here without one."
